

SUPPLY CHAINS AT THE EXTREME - THEIR EMERGING ROLE SUPPORTING DEVELOPMENT AID AND HUMANITARIAN RELIEF

MGSM, MACQUARIE UNIVERSITY, SYDNEY, 22 FEBRUARY, 2010

08.30	Introduction & context - Supply Chains at the extreme Dr John Gattorna
09.00	Developing & developed world supply chains - what's different, what's common, why does it matter? 3-4 perspectives and a panel discussion Maeve Magner - Clinton Foundation, Michael Whiting - DFID and UN logistics roles (incl. Indian Ocean Tsunami and Cyclone Nargis), Dr Peter Tatham - Cranfield University/HumLog, UK, Glenn Mills - Executive Director, UTi Charitable Foundation
11.00	The private sector's role in development support. What are the emerging models? How well are they working? What other opportunities exist? 3-4 perspectives/ case studies and a panel discussion Dr Bill Hurditch - Business for Millennium Development, Diane Reynolds - PHD Fuels Group South Africa, Conor O'Malley - LAA Supply Chain International Devt Program, Matt Hemy - Head of DHL Asia-Pacific Disaster Response Team
13.15	Building supply chain capacity and capability on the ground. Are there common gaps? What are the issues in building sustainable capacity and capability? How is knowledge transfer achieved? 3-4 perspectives and a panel discussion Prof. Paulo Goncalves - University of Lugano, Switzerland, Andrea Nield - Emergency Architects, Natasha Freeman - Australian Red Cross, Dr Alejandra Efron/David Mullany - BrAle Consulting
14.45	The military role in the aid supply chain. When is involvement most appropriate? Is the role changing? How is alignment between government/military and non-government agencies in the delivery of aid playing out? 3-4 perspectives and a panel discussion Group Capt Hayden Marshall - Australian Defence Forces, Ken Noye - PDL Toll Logistics, Michael Whiting - DFID and UN logistics, Dr Peter Tatham - Cranfield University/HumLog, UK
16.30	Supply chain 'types' - what are the key strategic drivers across different development and humanitarian situations? Why understanding them helps 'on the ground' Presentation and discussion Dr John Gattorna, Prof. Martin Christopher, Cranfield, Kate Hughes - SC Consultant/MGSM, Deborah Ellis - Carpenter Ellis/MGSM
19.00	Dinner and After Dinner Speaker Prof. Martin Silink (Immediate Past President, International Diabetes Federation)
AM/23.02.	Working session - Supply chain issues analysis Interested speakers & attendees

MORNING TEA/COFFEE	10.30
LUNCH BREAK	12.30
AFTERNOON TEA/COFFEE	16.15
FINISH	17.45
DINNER + AFTER DINNER SPEAKER	19.00

A nominal fee for delegates of A$500 (+ GST) will be charged. Lower fees are available for second and subsequent delegates from any organisation, and for students.
To register please email your request to the Program Coordinator Jane McLaughlin at: jane.mclaughlin@mgsm.edu.au or contact the Convenor Deborah Ellis at: debellis@carpenterellis.com, Phone +61-2-9965 0002
Please note: Accommodation and travel costs are not included.